Careers

Individuals completing the M.S.Ed. in RME have the skills needed to be successful in employment positions related to data management, research coordinator, and statistical analyst for private corporations, state agencies, school districts, and non-profit organizations conducting research studies and evaluations. Data driven decisions and accountability is widespread in education, health care, and other human services, and thus there is widespread demand for individuals trained in the collection and analysis of data related to educational effectiveness, health outcomes, and human service programs. Individuals having an M.S.Ed. are well-suited for playing a role in meeting this demand.
