Research, Measurement, and Evaluation: Ph.D.

Careers

Individuals completing the Ph.D. in RME have the skills needed to assume a faculty position in quantitative methodology, serve as a consultant to large-scale research projects and evaluations, or serve as a data analyst or research scientist for research agencies, private corporations, state agencies, school districts, and non-profit organizations conducting research studies and evaluations. Students focusing on measurement are particularly well-suited to work in the development and analysis of large-scale testing programs administered by testing companies (e.g., ETS and ACT) and state educational accountability agencies.
